To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to recommend Mr Donovan King as a future employee of your company. I have known Donovan for ten years; I taught him in high school and at university. He was my teaching assistant in high school.

Donovan did very well in all the courses he took with me. He not only did the work that was required of him, he seized the opportunity to really learn what was important for him. He initiated several large projects that became expressions of learning that went far beyond what the course demanded of him. In high school, he organized his classmates to produce a full length play while accepting and managing the artistic and financial responsibilities. In his capacity of teacher assistant, he arranged a three day theatre trip to Ontario, which included having to arrange transportation, lodging, and financing for twenty five students. While he was at university studying how to teach drama, he worked with community groups putting into practice what he was learning.

Donovan is an extremely resourceful person. Where others will find a situation overwhelming or impossible, he will persevere until the problem is solved. Anxious to explore new roles, to experience different management positions and finding little opportunity in the theatre scene in Montreal, he founded his own theatre company which is registered with the Quebec Drama Federation. The company enjoys an admirable amount of critical and financial success.

Donovan is intelligent, reliable, and trustworthy. He has a pleasant, agreeable personality. Whatever task he sets himself, he will accept the responsibility to do it well. That is his way.

I am certain he will be a good and valuable employee.

Sincerely,

Louise Chalmers
President
